Ball Lock

1. Select appropriate Lanyard for the grill to be covered and install as follows:

A. For single-hook installations connect the hook as shown in image (A), keeping the hook as close to the center as possible so that it lines up with the hole in the Shield. Use the grill mounting screws (pointer in picture A) in the vent cover to center the hook.

B. For double hook installation, connect one Lanyard hook to each of the opposite sides of the grill's center panel and draw the Lanyard tight locking the hooks in position as shown in image (B). Use the grill mounting screws (pointer in picture B) screws in the vent cover to center the hook.

2. Insert the end of the Lanyard through the center hole of the Shield and then insert the Ball Lock on the end of the Lanyard as shown in image (C). Slide the Ball Lock up against the Shield making sure that the Shield is adjusted to cover the entire grill.

3. Make sure the Ball Lock is snug and slip the end of the lanyard into the remaining hole on the Shield to keep it out of sight.

Note: If the grill being covered is against a wall or ceiling corner, the flange on the edge of the shield touching the corner must be trimmed to permit the Shield to fit properly.
